

Canaday got a jacket and went out. The men had a "brief discussion" about the engine block, "on making good on this bad car engine deal," Shook said.

Canaday responded, "'You have what you have; a deal is a deal.' That's when Shook shot him," Gesell said.

Shook allegedly shot Canaday twice, once in the head, once in the abdomen.

"(Shook) messed up two families," said Jerry Canaday, Tim Canaday's older brother who was reached at his home in Torrington on Thursday. "It's kind of bad deal for anyone to lose their lives when they're way too young."

Shook was arrested later near his home at 3704 Carey Ave. A search of his vehicle yielded what is believed to be the weapon used in the incident and some ammunition.

No one answered the door at the one-story ranch near Burns Thursday afternoon nor was a message to contact the Wyoming Tribune Eagle returned.

Jerry Canaday said his brother, who he called "Timmy," was a husband and father of three daughters. His "main deal" in life was to be a mechanic.

He was always willing to go to Torrington to do repairs on the trucks for Jerry Canaday's water well service business.

"Tim had a good personality -- I think he was well-liked by most people," Jerry Canaday said.

"He had his problems. He had been in a few scrapes. He was just getting his life really together -- I was really proud of him."

The Wyoming sex offender registry lists both Tim and LLeann Canaday. Both were convicted of immoral and indecent acts with a child in Wheatland in 1996, according to the registry.
