

JOHNSTON, HAROLD
September 22, 1902-May 14, 1918

Harold Johnston was born in Havensville, Kansas, September 22, 1902. After a short illness, he died of congestion of the brain, May 14, 1918. He was the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Johnston, who have resided six and one-half miles north-east of town for the past two years.

Harold was always a model boy at home and in the community. He took a great interest in the school and farm. He was also an active member of the pork club. He had recently joined the home guards and was intensely interested in all it's activities.

He had strong religious inclinations and had intended uniting with the church. He shall be greatly missed among us. The bereaved mother and father have the sincere sympathy of all their many friends.

A detail from the Wheatland Home Guards in charge of Sergeant John Hemment accompanied the remains to the grave, and at the conclusion of the services fired a volley over the grave of their departed comrade, and the bugler, Harry Dearing, sounded Taps. The pallbearers were also of the company.
