

Man slain outside Wheatland bar

WHEATLAND (AP) — A Wheatland man died Saturday morning after apparently being shot in the parking lot of a bar, according to police.

The Wheatland Police Department, in a news release, said the unidentified man, age 39, died early Saturday morning after he was found shot at about 7:45 p.m. Friday night in the Wheatland parking lot.

The release said the man was found when police responded to a request for emergency aid at the bar. It added preliminary investigations indicated a firearm may have been involved in the incident.

The release said the man's name would not be released until all of his relatives had been notified.

The incident is being investigated by the Wheatland Police Department and the Platte County Coroner's office.
