MRS. W.H. RALSTON DIES AT RANCH HOME

Wife of County Commissioner Passes Away at Home Near Uva Last Friday Night

Following the funeral at the family residence on Monday, which was attended by a large number of deeply grieved friends, the remains of Mrs. W.H. Ralston, who died at Uva Friday, were interred Monday afternoon at the cemetery here. Mrs. Ralston was widely known and much loved. The Cheyenne Tribune of Monday offers the following:

After a brief illness, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Ralston, wife of R.H. Ralston, died at Uva, Wyoming, Friday, September 19th, 1914.

Mrs. Ralston was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stuart Macfarlane, of Montreal, Canada, where she grew to womanhood. Mrs. Ralston came to Wyoming to visit her brothers, W.F. and Peter Macfarlane of Horseshoe, and on November 21st, 1892, was married to W.H. Ralston at St. Mark's church, Cheyenne. Since their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Ralston have made their home at the ranch near Uva. During her residence in northern Laramie county, Mrs. Ralston closely identified herself with the life of the countryside, and in her death, the neighborhood whose beautiful character and gentle personality made her greatly beloved by all who know her. A devoted wife and mother, she leaves surviving her, her husband and one daughter, Marion.
