

WALLACE, D.D.
?-January 6, 1923

D.D. Wallace, formerly a leading business man and farmer of this vicinity, died Saturday, Jan. 6th, at his home in Denver.

Mr. Wallace had been, to all appearances, enjoying the best of health when he incurred a sudden attack of heart failure while shaving, and died instantly.

While a resident of Wheatland, he owned and operated the Globe hotel, and later bought and operated the farm now owned by J.L. Thompson. He left here about 18 years ago, going first to Portland, Ore., and then to Denver, where he was engaged in the real estate business.

The funeral was held in Denver on Monday, and according to arrangements made by the deceased himself, the remains were to be cremated and the ashes laid to rest beside the body of his only child in the Wheatland cemetery.